08:40-09:20	Keynote Speaker Speech 1  Dr. Rossitsa Yalamova Finance at the University of Lethbridge in Alberta, Canada Title: Network Governance of Complex Socio-Economic Systems – Sustainability, Resilience and Anti- fragility Abstract: Traditional business strategies often concentrate on predictable and measurable clarity. Sustainability concerns of today call for integrative strategies that encompass flexibility, openness and have a high tolerance for disequilibrium. Strong integrative decision making must involve a heuristic process. The challenges of sustainable development create tensions in the environment. These tensions must be creatively and flexibly managed. Effective network governance can be used to capture the complex relationships between the salient variables inherent within sustainable development. Network/multilevel governance of the complex systems will be reviewed with emphasis on the main leverage points that will allow us to build resilience in the socio-economic system. The hierarchical structure of the system with semi-autonomous level developing at different speed creates opportunities for innovations that may destabilize the system. Sustainability of a system is defined as its adaptive capacity. Nassim Taleb’s novel idea of creating anti-fragile systems will be discussed in this context.

The term “Marketing Mix” was first used in 1953 by Neil Borden, in his American Marketing Association presidential address. E. Jerome McCarthy, proposed a 4 P’s classification in 1960, which has seen widely use, classifying all these Marketing tools under four broad categories collectively called 4 P’s of marketing .          Product / Price / Place / Promotion

Through literature review we were able to observe that both types of thinking can produce effective and efficient outcome. However it is also important to realize that spiritual thinking and rational thinking are influenced by undesirable factors. Such factors originate from our own limitations, the way we perceive the world and how the world affects us. Consequently fallacious reasoning and biases can creep into the process and procedure of spiritual thinking and rational thinking.

	Abstract: Using auction level data on price, this paper analyzes the Korean art market and constructs hedonic price index by nonparametric estimation method. I have segmented the paintings market into domestic artworks sample and foreign artworks sample. The analysis of art as an investment indicates that Korean art market has had a higher rate of return than of other investment alternatives with higher risk. Dislike to other countries, the CAPM analysis suggests that the paintings in Korea - both domestic artworks and foreign artworks - are poor vehicle for the portfolio diversification benefit to the investors. This may be due to that the history of recent worldwide financial crisis and art investment market is not well established with its short history in Korea. However, the investment on the Korean paintings market can be considered as a method of hedge against inflation.

T20015	The impact of Capital Structure on Firm Value Taoufik BOURAOUI Abstract: This paper aims to study the impact of capital structure on firm performance. We constituted a sample of 650 listed non-financial companies in China between January 2006 and December 2011. After using descriptive statistic to provide simple summaries about the samples and measures, we set up three quantitative models: ordinary least squares (OLS), quadratic regression and two-stage least squares (2SLS) to find out the impact of capital structure on firm performance. We use ROA and TQ as surrogates for firm value and debt-to-asset ratio as the measure of leverage. The result of both OLS and 2SLS tests show that capital structure has a significantly negative relationship with the firm performance. The result of quadratic regression confirmed that there is an optimal leverage ratio around 23.3% in which Chinese publicly listed firms can maximize their firm value.

T10005	The short- and long-run share price performance of acquiring firms listed on the Johannesburg Securities Exchange Chimwemwe Chipeta, Morathi Ramokgopa Abstract: The aim of this study is to measure the impact of M&amp;As on the share price performance of listed companies on the Johannesburg Securities Exchange over a ten year horizon (2000 to 2010). This is done by examining the value created or destroyed through M&amp;As during the pre- and post-acquisition periods that fall under the ten year horizon. A distinction is made between cash funded and share funded acquisitions in order to examine the direct impact of these payment strategies on the firm value. The size, value and resource effects are also examined in order to observe whether they are significant factors in the share price performance over a long horizon. Merger waves are also taken into account to observe the characteristics that the M&amp;As under this study should display. The Panel data estimation procedure is used. The results show that most of the identified long-run performance determinants display inconclusive results. The size effect is present only when specifically looking at the overall period under study. The most contrary result is the insignificance of the merger waves, which mainly implies that acquiring firms are not significantly affected by the macro-economic climate.

Hotel Avenida Palace

www.avenidapalace.com

The year 1952 was an eyewitness of a big hotel origin: The Avenida Palace Hotel. This symbolic establishment was built where the mythical Tea Saloon and restaurant Casa Libre was situated. Numerous public, cultural and social life authorities attended its inauguration; among the others, an outstanding authority was Bishop Moreno, who was the person in charge of the inauguration. Its noble and charming style has turned it into the most chosen option, throughout the years, by a lot of celebrities that have visited the city. Ernest Hemingway, Joan Miró, Lizza Minelli, have been some, just some of the countless very important guests in the hotel. But, without a doubt, the Beatles' were the guests who most expectancy produced -some "cheerful and full of life young" that according to Mr. Rojas, Head Reception in 'that' 1965, came to Barcelona to give their European tour last concert in the Monumental Bull Ring, a historic 3rd of July 1965.

From its early days, the hotel was integrated in the Barcelona Gran Vía Avenue architecture as a new time enduring symbol.

Since then, and as it could not be otherwise, the hotel has been restored several times with the objective of preserving the balance between the forever lasting Classicism and a cutting edge modernity that a high quality hotel in Barcelona needs within the XXI century.
